SINGING IN THE RAIN

A few drops of rain could not dampen the spirits of everyone as the first day's action unfolded. The Women played two matches which see Belgium leading the way followed by Poland, England and Sweden.

In the Open series three rounds have been completed and in Group A Israel lead from Sweden, Hungary and Italy. In Group B France top the table, ahead of Denmark, Luxembourg and Monaco.

Still, as the biblical saying goes, 'the race does not always go to the swiftest' and there is more than enough time for things to change.

Meanwhile the Seniors are starting to arrive in readiness for the start of their event on Saturday.

The championship souvenirs are located on the first floor

President's Opening Adress

Mrs Caitriona Jones – Mayor, South Dublin County
 Mr Michael Ring – Minister of State for Tourism and Sport
 Mrs Mary Kelly-Rogers – President of the Irish Bridge Union
 Mr Joe Moran – Chairman of the Organizing Committee

Dear Bridge Friends,

I am pleased to welcome all of you to Dublin, players, officers, journalists, operators, volunteers and guests to participate in the 51st European Bridge Team Championships.

34 countries are participating in this championship organized for the 4th time in Ireland after Dun Laoghaire in 1952, Dublin in 1967 and Killarney in 1991.

I want to thank the Irish authorities for their great support in the organization of this championship in Dublin and in particular Mrs Caitriona Jones – Mayor of South Dublin County and Mr Michael Ring – Minister of State for Tourism and Sport whose presence honours us.

I would like to congratulate the Irish Bridge Union, its President Mary Kelly-Rogers, Joe Moran, the Chairman of the Organizing Committee, Paul Porteous, the On-Site Organizer, Sandie Millership and all Irish people for the great job they have accomplished in organizing this event in such a short period.

I would like to thank especially all the Irish volunteers who will give their time during these two weeks.

You have all worked with such commitment, passion, professionalism and enthusiasm to make it a success.

Hosting this championship would not have been possible without the generous support of the Irish sponsors, in particular Fáilte Ireland, the special contribution of all Irish Bridge Members, the full cooperation of the Citywest Resort and I express my thanks and my appreciation to all of them.

We are in Dublin and I am confident that you will all appreciate the Irish traditions and culture and the warm welcome of the Dubliners.

I wish you all a successful championship.

Enjoy your play and your stay in Dublin.

I declare the 51st European Bridge Team Championships officially open.

Yves Aubry
 EBL President

Championship Diary

Maureen Hiron, Bridge Correspondent of The Independent & The Irish Independent dropped by the office and invited us to try and guess her new job. Having eliminated the obvious (as Sherlock Holmes would have remarked) we eventually worked out it must be that she is the new manager of the vocal group Boney M (Rivers of Babylon, Rasputin, Brown Girl in the Ring, Ma Baker). You read it here first.

You may encounter the Editor whistling some refrain you recognise:

*Just a song at twilight, when the lights are low,
 And the flick'ring shadows softly come and go,
 Tho' the heart be weary, sad the day and long,
 Still to us at twilight comes Love's old song,
 comes Love's old sweet song.*

Do you know why that is significant here in Dublin? Watch out for the answer later this week.

Your badge has a bar code that enables you to collect a copy of the deals at the end of each session. We overheard someone saying that his bar code was 2 pints of Guinness.

We are sure many of you will be trying out the impressive looking golf course that is adjacent to the playing rooms. Tacchi mentioned that his definition of the fairway is something you cross to reach your ball.

We are aiming to open a new concession on the first floor - our umbrellas will feature the EBL logo and all proceeds will go the distressed Bulletin Editors fund, of which Tacchi is President, Treasurer, Secretary and sole member.

These fantastic Galway Crystal mementoes are the prizes for winning the afternoon duplicates (they are also on sale at the shop on the first floor for a modest 15 euro).

Hospitality Corner

Watch out for the Open Top Red bus which will bring you from the door of the Hotel at 9.20 a.m each morning. You can then join tours, or walks or take time out away from the championships. Ask about Pat Liddy Walking Tours, Newbridge Silverware and Kildare Outlet Village.

Thursday 14th

For the Irish Spanish match (that's football) you have choices for watching the game on Big Screen.

Lakes Suite Citywest Convention Centre 1st Floor Dining Area - A barbeque for 13 euro starting at 7p.m.

BBQ Menus

Vouchers can be prepaid at any of the food Outlets in the Lakes Suite

Alternatively if you are a racing fan you can enjoy an evening race night at Leopardstown, no more than 20 mins away. First race 4p.m. and you can still watch the match on big screens with either a beer and light refreshments or have dinner in the dining room. Please advise Hospitality if you are interested - Option of bus or taxi. www.leopardstown.com

Friday 15th

Champagne reception in Kildare Outlet Village offering a special welcome for our guests and an opportunity for some retail therapy with free transfers and VIP Savings. We will also bring you to Tully, the National Stud close by. Queen Elizabeth visited Tully on her first and also historic visit to Ireland last year. It Only Takes A Second

Waiting for the plane to Dublin at Bristol airport I read Maureen Hiron's (her late husband Alan 'Did someone say redders' was one of My Great Predecessors as Editor of Bridge Magazine) always excellent column in The Independent (she also writes in the Irish Independent). This was her featured deal:

West led the queen of hearts and declarer won and tried the queen of clubs. West made the mistake of winning that and declarer was able to duck a round of clubs and come to nine tricks.

Maureen pointed out that West should duck the queen of clubs as declarer will duck the next round of clubs, hoping to find East with a doubleton ace. Spot on as usual, but if West gives even a moment's thought before ducking declarer might find a way home by next playing a club to the king. When that holds declarer must resist the temptation to take a diamond finesse and duck a spade. Declarer ducks a heart, wins the next one, cashes two spades and exits with a heart to endplay West.

Barry Rigal

Géza Ottlik was born a century ago this year on May 9, 1912 in Budapest, where he died on October 9, 1990. He was a Hungarian writer, translator, mathematician, and bridge theorist.

He attended military school at Kőszeg and Budapest, and studied mathematics and physics at Budapest University. After a brief career on Hungarian radio, he was a secretary of the Hungarian PEN Club from 1945 to 1957. As he was unable to publish his works for political reasons, he earned his living translating, mainly from English (Charles Dickens, George Bernard Shaw, John Osborne, Evelyn Waugh); and German (Thomas Mann, G. Keller, Stefan Zweig).

He was a passionate bridge player and advanced theoretician, and his 1979 book Adventures in Card Play written with Hugh Kelsey introduced and developed many new concepts (such as Backwash squeeze and Entry-shifting squeeze). A survey of bridge experts in 2007, listed the book third on a list of their all-time favourites, nearly thirty years after its first publication.

In 1977 the first Junior European championships were held in Budapest. Ottlik composed deals for the camp that proved the model for many of the deals in Adventures. Here are some of those problems.

OPEN	<h1 style="margin: 0;">Monaco v England</h1> by Mark Horton
Round 1

Two teams with high hopes of earning a trip to Bali next year met in the first round of Open B.

England suffered a setback before a card was played when Andrew Robson and Alexander Allfrey withdrew at the last moment. England has summoned its reserve pair, Tom Townsend and David Bakhshi.

This was one of the matches featured on BBO and as regular followers of that Internet phenomenon will be aware, England's Peter Crouch is a regular commentator. His BBO 'handle' is pitiful, which is presumably derived from the allusion to the 'pitiful crutch' (fourth suit forcing) that was much derided by Terence Reese. Personally I think it is in homage to the footballer Peter Crouch (scorer of the goal of the English season against Manchester City) - 'he's big, he's red, his feet stick out of bed, Peter Crouch, Peter Crouch' who, on having a poor game has sometimes been described as 'the Pitiful Crouch'.

Enough of this, after all, who could possibly be interested in football in the middle of a bridge championship?

Like many of the pairs in this event Peter and his partner, former Junior World Champion Derek Patterson, make a lot of use of transfers and it would be interesting to see how their methods would compare with those of the world's number one ranked pair at the other table.

North led the ten of hearts and South won with the king and switched to the four of diamonds. North took the ace and returned the suit, South winning and playing a third diamond. Declarer won in dummy, played a club to the ace, a heart to the jack and the queen of spades. When North covered he had an overtrick, +630.

To defeat 3NT North must lead a spade - by no means obvious, but there was some small clue from the bidding.

South's 1♠ meant that 3NT would probably have had no realistic chance at this table and stopping in 3♥ was the best E/W could do. They lost a heart, two diamonds and a club, +140 but 10 IMPs to Monaco.

1♥ Possibly three hearts but partner assumes four

West's delayed entry into the auction offered N/S what appeared to be an attractive option to bidding game - but appearances can be deceptive.

North led the two of clubs and declarer put up dummy's ace, ruffed a heart and played the jack of clubs, covered by the queen and king. Declarer ruffed another heart, North unblocking the ace, cashed the ten of clubs and the ace of diamonds, North unblocking the king and advanced the queen of spades.

If North allows South to win this the contract must go two down, but he put up the king and played a diamond. South took the queen and returned the suit for North to ruff. South could ruff North's club exit with the ace, but declarer could ruff the heart exit with the seven of spades and escape for one down, -200.

South struck gold (no pun intended) with his protective move. One point in favour of bidding 3NT is that with ♠A2 holding up once may be enough to take West out of the game on many occasions.

West led the jack of clubs, but the defenders could only muster four tricks, +600 and 9 IMPs to Monaco.

West led the king of diamonds and declarer won with dummy's ace, cashed the ace of hearts and played a heart to the jack. When that held he tried a club to the king. East took the ace and returned the queen, declarer ruffing with the seven of hearts.

At this point there are eight tricks once West's queen of diamonds has been dislodged and it is possible to endplay West into surrendering a ninth trick in spades. However, according to the play record declarer did not manage to find a winning line and finished one down, -50 and 5 IMPs for England.

The price of gold is always rising and falling - and it is much the same with the number of cards required for a preempt. When South was unwilling to commit his side to game by bidding 4♣ (how easy it is to be a paper tiger) England had a game swing that was worth 10 IMPs.

I'm not certain of the precise meaning of 2♣, but at the very least it must have promised diamonds given North's jump to 3♦.

To be sure of defeating 4♥ South has to lead his trump - hardly attractive - and on a diamond lead declarer ruffed and led the queen of spades. South won and found the best switch to a trump.

Tony Forrester, England

Now the winning line is for declarer to win with dummy's ace, ruff a diamond, cash the king of spades, ruff a spade, ruff a diamond, then play ace of clubs and a club. With North forced to win and return a club declarer ruffs and exits with a spade, scoring the last two tricks with the ♠KJ.

However, this is far from clear (and if South's bid simply showed diamonds) a very hard line to follow - in practice declarer went one down, -50 and a flat board.

Round 1

England v France

by Brian Senior

England must have been happy to come away with a draw in Monday evening's Euro 2012 match against France and I imagine that both of these old rivals would have settled for a similar outcome in their first-round match here in Dublin.

The first five deals were all flat. The first swing was only a small one but it featured some nice defence.

Both Souths led the king of diamonds and both declarers won and led a club up. North won the club and returned a diamond, in each case completing a count signal. Both Nicola Smith and Danièle Gaviard now cashed the ace of clubs before playing the third diamond, appreciating that they wanted to avoid being put on lead at a time of declarer's choosing. Now came the parting of the ways.

Heather Dhondy ruffed the diamond and led ace then queen of spades to Vanessa Reess's king. She ruffed the diamond return and was over-ruffed and now Gaviard exited with the ten of spades. Dhondy won the jack and played the king of hearts to the ace. Gaviard got off play with the ten of clubs to dummy's jack and the last spade went away. There was a heart to lose for one down; -100.

After ruffing the third diamond, Bénédicte Cronier led the king of hearts, hoping to force her opponents to open up spades for her. Smith won her ace and found the perfect defence, returning her low heart to the jack and queen. Cronier put her back in with a heart but now Smith took both hearts and exited with the ten of spades. That ensured that Brock would not put up her king so Cronier won the queen but could then only cash the ace and concede the last two tricks to Brock's spade king and diamond ten for down two; -200 and 3 IMPs to England.

Identical and normal contracts were reached and the opening leads were also identical, both Nevena Senior and Sylvie Willard selecting the passive five of clubs. Dhondy and Cronier each won the club ace and switched to the seven of diamonds. Now the contract is made by winning the diamond ace, cashing the club queen and heart ace, and playing ace then ruff a spade followed by winning clubs for diamond discards. But both Gaviard and Smith put in the diamond queen, losing to the king. Senior returned the eight of diamonds to declarer's ten and Gaviard cashed the heart ace - down one for -50. Willard switched to the eight of hearts and now there was only one trump loser; ten tricks for +420 and 10 IMPs to England, leading by 13-1.

Reess opened 1♣, three-plus cards, and Gaviard responded 1♥, natural. When Senior overcalled, Reess had nothing to say and Dhondy responded INT, where she was left to stew. Gaviard led a heart and the defence began with five rounds of those followed by a diamond to the king, ducked by Reess. Dhondy took the club finesse then played the queen of spades. Gaviard won and played a diamond and, after taking two diamond winners, Reess was down to only clubs. Dhondy finessed on the enforced club return but, also being down to only clubs, had to concede the last trick to the club king for down three; -300.

Brock too opened 1♣ but this promised only two and could have been almost any weak no trump type. The 1♦ response showed hearts and 1♥ a weak no trump with two or three hearts. Knowing that there could be no game, Smith passed that and now E/W again bid to INT. However, Brock was tempted by her undisclosed club length and competed with 2♣, corrected to 2♥ by Smith. Cronier led the queen of spades to dummy's ace. Brock ducked a club, won the diamond return and played back a diamond to the ten and king. Willard played a club, ruffed, and now Brock led a diamond to the jack and ruffed another club. When Willard could not over-ruff, Brock had eight tricks for +110 but 5 IMPs to France; 6-13.

Vanessa Reess, France

The N/S hands fit together very well, making game in either major well worth bidding, though with 11 facing 11 it is by no means automatic to do so. Gaviard opened 1♠ in fourth seat and Reess used Drury, Dhondy doubling to show clubs. Gaviard's pass was non-committal but denied an absolute minimum, with which she would have signed off in 2♠. When Senior competed with 3♣ and that came around, Gaviard introduced her second suit and Reess raised to game. Senior led king and another club and, after winning the second round, Dhondy switched to a diamond. Gaviard won the ace and ran the queen of hearts. Though that lost, the favourable spade position meant ten tricks for +620. Well done to Gaviard for getting to game.

In the other room, Cronier opened with a lead-directing club bid in third seat and Smith overcalled. Brock made a constructive-raise cuebid then competed with 3♠ but Smith did not fancy game facing a passed hand so played in 3♠, where she too lost three tricks for +170 but 10 IMPs to France, leveling the match at 16-16.

Back came a heart. Cronier ruffed and played off the king and queen of diamonds, intending to ruff the fourth round with the carefully preserved queen had the ten not appeared. When it did, she simply conceded a trick to the ace of spades; down one for -200.

Gaviard doubled the 3♠ overcall and Reess responded 3NT. When that came around, Senior doubled and now Reess redoubled to express doubt. With a bare minimum for her previous action, Gaviard corrected to 4♣ and that ended the auction. Dhondy led the queen of diamonds. Reess won the ace and cashed the king of spades then played ace and another club to the jack, queen and king. Senior cashed the jack of diamonds then exited with the nine of clubs to declarer's ten. Reess led the jack of hearts and, when Dhondy showed out, rose with the ace and took a heart pitch on the ace of spades. She was two down for -200 and 9 IMPs to England, ahead by 25-16.

England regained the lead immediately when France got to the four level and went down at both tables. Both Norths opened 1♣, three-plus cards for Reess, two-plus for Brock, and East pre-empted. Smith went quietly with the South cards and Willard made a questionable raise to game. Looking at two aces, Smith now doubled, ending the auction. She led a club, ducked to the ace, and Brock returned the suit to the jack, queen and king. Cronier tried the king of hearts and, when Brock played low in tempo, ruffed and led a diamond to the jack and ace. She ruffed the club return and led a low spade, ducking to the bare king.

Cronier opened with a weak 2♠ and, when Smith overcalled, Willard competed with 3♠. Holding substantial extra values, Smith doubled when that got back to her and, with heart shortage and no guarantee of game, Brock passed it out. Smith led the queen of clubs. Brock overtook and switched to the heart. Smith took the ace and returned the queen, Brock ruffing the king, and now a diamond switch collected two defensive tricks there plus the heart jack and a second club for down three; -500.

Dhondy felt that she was too good for a non-vulnerable weak two bid in her style so opened a level higher. Gaviard doubled and converted the 4♦ response to 4♥. When Reess introduced her second suit, Gaviard gave preference to diamonds, ending the auction. Dhondy cashed the ace of spades then switched to a heart. Reess won the ace and made the standard safety play, cashing the trump ace, so made exactly for +600 and 3 IMPs to France; 25-28.

ace and prayed the suit was six-one. Dhondy/Senior had an essentially free run to the heart game, Reess making a lead-directing double along the way. She found herself on lead, however, so kicked off with the king of diamonds to dummy's ace. Senior led the king of clubs off the dummy and Reess won her ace and switched to a spade. Senior took the ace and cashed two clubs for diamond pitches then played a heart to the queen then ducked a heart to the jack. There was a second heart and the spade king to lose for down two and -200.

That didn't look to be a great result for England but the French E/W pair did even worse. Brock opened 2♣ in third seat, either strong and artificial or, as here, a weak two in diamonds. Two Diamonds was take-out of diamonds and Cronier followed up with a natural 2NT, too strong for an immediate 2NT overcall, so Willard raised her to game. The diamond lead put the defence in control. You should try to avoid guessing the trump honors. If the king of clubs is onside you won't need to open up the trump suit at all. Return a spade at once and use dummy's entries to ruff spades in your hand, a diamond in dummy, then concede the club loser. In the three-card ending you are down to trumps in both hand and the opponents must find the trump jack for you.
